ELA - Foreign Language Unattached Equipment List

A mobile wireless language lab uses radio frequency technology to connect multiple student stations to a teacher station. The portable system facilitates student learning in the four basic skill groups: listening, speaking, reading, and writing using multimedia audio players and voice recorders. Students have equal opportunity to listen or speak with privacy, while the instructor can work with individual students without interruption from other students. The system's intercom and recording functions give instant access to student work in progress, offering instructors the ability to work with, monitor, and record individuals, pairs, or groups of students. The instructor can also monitor selected students without their knowledge and provide private instruction as necessary.
